100 Classroom Facilities

110 Classroom
A room or space used primarily for instructional courses that is not tied to a specific subject or discipline by equipment in the room or the configuration of the space.

If the room is a departmentally controlled classroom, such as those in the School of Business, the room should be classified as a 110 if scheduled use is greater than 18 hours per week. If scheduled use is less than 18 hours, the room should be classified as a 111. This is because the use of these rooms is quite heavy and would increase the overall utilization averages for VCU.

It is important to consider the space’s primary purpose and course scheduling data, as not every room used for scheduled instruction should be classified as a classroom.

Classrooms may be furnished with special equipment appropriate for a specific area of study (e.g., globes, pianos, maps, computers, and network connections) as long as the equipment does not render the space unusable by classes in other concentrations (i.e., an English course cannot be taught at chemistry laboratory tables).

Examples:
- Lecture rooms
- Lecture-demonstration rooms
- Seminar rooms

111 Speciality Classroom
A room or space used primarily for instruction that is controlled and scheduled by a department and not used beyond 18 hours per week. Classrooms reserved for non-credit bearing activities, such as the Global Education classrooms, should be categorized in this space use code. Through classifying classroom spaces as 110 and 111 based on scheduled use and scheduling expectations, the University will be able to accurately report and evaluate instructional space utilization. Rooms classified as specialty classrooms will not be included in the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) scheduling report.

Examples:
- VCU Brandcenter classrooms
- Global Education classrooms

115 Classroom Service
A space that directly serves one or more classrooms as an adjacent extension of the activities in that space.

Examples:
- Projection rooms
- Telecommunications control booths

- Coat rooms
- Closets
200 Laboratory Facilities

210 Class Laboratory
A space used primarily for formally or regularly scheduled instruction that requires special-purpose equipment or a specific space configuration for student participation, experimentation, observation, or practice in an academic discipline. Special-purpose equipment or the configuration of a room normally limits or precludes the space’s use by other disciplines.

Formally or regularly scheduled use is defined as course activities that are regularly scheduled every term in the year, through an institutionally approved entity (i.e., the Registrar’s office). These activities fulfill course requirements and typically have a faculty member present.

Class laboratories may be either instructional studio rooms used by the School of the Arts or traditional class laboratories as used by the sciences.

Examples:
- Teaching laboratories (such as biology and chemistry laboratories)
- Instructional shops
- Drafting rooms
- Choral rooms
- Instructional health laboratories (such as gross anatomy, anatomy, and physiology laboratories)
- Computer rooms used primarily to instruct students in the use of computers if that instruction is conducted primarily in formally or regularly scheduled classes

Spaces containing computer equipment that is not restricted to a specific discipline or discipline group are classified as study rooms (410) unless the primary intent is to function as a site for structured learning or group activities rather than individual knowledge acquisition.

Examples:

A receptionist room that includes a waiting area should typically be coded as an office. If the waiting area is substantial, consider using phantom walls to separate the two areas.

Any other spaces, such as glass shops, printing shops, study rooms, classrooms, research / non-class laboratories, or others that incidentally contain desk space for a technician or staff member are classified according to the primary use of the space, rather than as an office.

Office spaces that house student organizations should be considered as meeting room space (680).

A research space housing Principal Investigators, dedicated research staff, or students working at one or more desks, tables, or workstations. Included are research-based faculty, administrative, clerical, graduate and teaching assistant, and student employee offices. A research receptionist room that includes a waiting area should typically be coded as a research office.
